7 Things To Look Out For When Migrating To Australia

Many migration applications can go wrong because visa applicants fall into common traps. These often cause applicants more time, money and effort, as well as disappointment in their Australia migration process, and in some cases, rejection of their Australia PR application. In the next 5 minutes, we are going to discuss the common pitfalls and how you can avoid them.

Pitfall 1: Failing To Do Your Homework

Migration to another country is a big decision and one not to be taken lightly. Have you decided on which state to settle down in Australia? How will the state tax, education, housing and pay scale affect you and your family?

Solution: Explore firsthand what it is like to live in Australia and deciding which state to settle down. Arrange to go for a trip to Australia to experience the Australian lifestyle (i.e. weather, employment, housing, education system, etc.). Do your homework effectively and collect information about the state that you plan to move to.

Pitfall 2: Not Understanding The Constraint and Limitations Of Each Type Of Visa.

It is very important for you to understand what a visa allows you to do and not to do. For instance, certain type of visa may only allow you to leave and reenter Australia a certain number of times.

Solution: Make sure that you apply for a visa that matches what you would like to do in Australia. Have in mind of the specific requirements of each type of visa and how it matches your desire situation.

Pitfall 3: Not Knowing Which Visa Best Match Your Skills

Australia government offers various options for applicants who possess adequate experience and expertise in various professions due to the growing demand for skilled workers in Australia. You or your spouse must have the skills and qualifications that meet the Australian standard for an occupation on the Skilled Occupation List (SOL) or its equivalent. A list of skilled occupations of high value to the Australian labor market is upgraded and posted at least once a year.

Solution: Make a thorough assessment of the skills that you or your partner possesses in order to be eligible to move into Australia. If you are not sure of you or your partner's eligibility, take the FREE online assessment offered by OZ Migrate Services. It is designed to quickly pre-screen your eligibility for Australia PR based on the criteria set by the Australian Department of Immigration and Citizenship (DIAC).

Pitfall 4: Undermining Sponsorship From Relatives

Having relatives who are based in Australia will give you additional points in your application. They can also sponsor you as an immigrant (subject to their approval) and can be a source of support when you relocate to Australia.

Solution: Be in contact with your relatives in Australia (if any). They may become your support when facing the initial challenges of migration and settlement.

Pitfall 5: Assuming That All Visa/Application Is The Same.

DO NOT just apply for any type of visa and DO NOT presume that every visa application is the same. The status of an immigrant's application is unique and it is different from that of other applications. Visa applications on immigration are treated individually and on a case-by-case basis.

Solution: Make sure that you apply for the right type of visa subclass. If you are not sure of which type of visa to apply for, take the FREE online assessment offered by OZ Migrate Services. It is designed to determine the type of visa based on your background and needs.

Pitfall 6: Failing To Keep Up With The Latest Migration Law

Australia's Department of Immigration and Citizenship (DIAC) has constant updates and changes to the immigration process. These changes come as often as every few months. It is important for applicants to ensure their application comply with the latest changes to deter any delays in their application process.

Solution: Make sure you get the accurate information from correct sources/registered migration agents. Do not pay attention to unfounded information and unconfirmed reports on matters related to Australian immigration. It is best to get advice from official sources or registered migration agents.

Pitfall 7: Working With Un-registered Migration Agents/Migration Agents With No Local Presence

You must be careful in employing migration agents or engaging the services of visa providers, especially those who have no local presence. During the migration process, you will be entrusting many of your confidential documents to them, thus it is important to work with a migration agent that you can trust.

Solution: OZ Migrate Services specializes in helping you find your IDEAL migration agent. We work with many registered and experienced migration agents whom have local presence here in Malaysia.
